Incapacity for work

As an independent contractor, you are not entitled to any protection in case of incapacity for work during the period before you may be granted a disability pension by the Swiss federal insurance (AI/IV).

Therefore, you will not be able to count on any replacement income during a time when you are forced to stop work. It is essential that you bridge this gap by taking out daily allowance insurance in case of incapacity for work due to illness and accident (payment of the insured daily income during 730 days). After this deadline, if you are still unable to work (earning disability), the Federal Disability Office (AI/IV) will take over. However, the pension paid out in this case is often not enough.

Pension benefits for self-employed persons in Switzerland

Economic and demographic trends have weakened the pension system, particularly its first pillar. For this reason, persons affected by disability or who reach retirement age have become increasingly dependent financially on the second and third pillars. In the event of death, the consequences can also be complicated for survivors.

This is especially true for you.

As a self-employed individual, you are not legally entitled to the full three-pillar system. You are not subject to the occupational benefits scheme (LPP/BVG) and will not receive daily allowance benefits in case of incapacity for work. Therefore, it is essential to take out individual insurance to cover these risks.

Pension benefits in Switzerland

A three-pillar system

1st pillar
- State pension (AVS/AHV)
- Supplemental benefits
- Securing basic needs

2nd pillar
- Occupational pensions (LPP/BVG)
- Private pensions

3rd pillar
- Individual insurance

Disability pension

Thanks to our comprehensive solution, you can expect to receive a disability pension to supplement social insurance benefits until retirement age (AVS/AHV).

Death

Your death could have serious financial consequences for your loved ones. Have you ever thought about what would happen? Would your business survive?

These are questions that need to be addressed. The death benefits provided under the first pillar (AVS/AHV) automatically cover part of the financial consequences of the risk of premature death. However, the benefits paid out are not very high and must imperatively be supplemented by other insurance plans. Our comprehensive solution will allow your family to face the future with confidence thanks to the payment of a lump-sum amount or pension benefits.

Retirement

Once you stop your occupational activity, your financial autonomy will depend on the savings made during your working life. The first pillar will ensure that you receive a subsistence wage but in this case also the level of pension will not allow you to maintain your previous standard of living. It is therefore essential to take out a comprehensive solution (pension scheme) that will also allow you to accumulate retirement savings.

This retirement savings plan, which can be taken out in addition to Challenge insurance, will allow you to accumulate assets for retirement, taking into account your personal situation.
