Prenatal insurance

Protect your baby from birth onwards

The birth of a child is a wonderful event that fills you with happiness and pride. The joy and impatience of seeing your baby sometimes come with many questions, including that of being properly insured.

What is prenatal insurance?

You can take out insurance for children of any age. But you can also do so before your child is born. This is what “prenatal” insurance is all about.

What are the advantages of taking out prenatal insurance with Groupe Mutuel?

For your child to be covered from birth onwards, you must have taken out health insurance. With Groupe Mutuel's prenatal insurance, you can choose supplemental coverage for your future baby during your pregnancy. You also get to benefit from the advantages mentioned on the previous page.

Start caring for your baby now!

To make sure your baby is well looked after from its first smile, we recommend the following:

1. Choose a basic health insurance model (standard model or alternative model, which we recommend in order to save money on premiums).
2. Include the accident risk.
3. Complete the coverage by adding one or more supplemental insurance plans, depending on your requirements.
4. You will therefore ensure that your child has the best possible coverage.

We are also thinking of you.

If you want to see a specialist as often as you like during your pregnancy to monitor your baby's development, or if you want to choose the hospital, ward and specialist during childbirth, our supplemental insurance policies cover the needs not catered to by your basic health insurance.
